

YOKOHAMA MATHEMATICAL JOURNAL

This journal endeavors to publish significant works in pure and applied mathematics. It had been published by Department of Mathematics, Yokohama City University from the first issue to Volume 40. From Volume 41, it has been published by both Yokohama City University and Yokohama National University. The latter is working mainly from Volume 58 and publishing one volume annually.

Submission: To submit a paper, an author should prepare the manuscript in the standard L^AT_EX format and send its source file and its PDF output to the Editorial Office by email. The paper must be original and not be submitted for publication elsewhere. The language used must be English.

Abstract: Each manuscript is required to contain an abstract, clearly separated from the rest of the paper, which will be printed right after the title. The length of an abstract should not exceed 200 words. Formulas should be used as sparingly as possible in the abstract.

Footnotes: Footnotes should not be used, except for title page footnotes. Such information should be included in the text.

Title Page Footnotes: Included as a footnote on the first page should be the following:

2010 Mathematics Subject Classification :

Key words and phrases :

Visit the following web site to find classification digits representing subjects of the article:
